HANG A FEW OF THEM

The frequency with which the country hears of the failures of men entrusted with the safe-keeping of money belonging to others suggests the inquiry whether there should not be a resort to more heroic remedies for the treatment of the evil. Scarcely a day passes that does not record the story of the defalcations of some guardian, administrator, bank cashier, or other fiduciary agent. The savings of the industrious poor, laid up for a provision against the time when labor is no longer possible, the meager legacies left for the support of the widow and orphan, the accumulations of life insurance and trust companies that represent the aggregate of living care for the dependent ones of thousands of fathers and husbands—all these are daily swept away by the dishonesty of trusted agents, and the sum total of misery that results from these causes is absolutely appalling in its immensity. Only yesterday the financial world stood aghast at the news that a bank cashier in Newark, New Jersey, had squandered two millions of dollars belonging to the institution whose affairs he managed. There was no question as to the identity of the guilty party, for he confessed his guilt. A great life insurance company—the Mutual Benefit, of Newark—is a loser by this failure to the extent of a million or more, and this was money collected from policy holders in a score of states who had foolishly hoped that they were making provision for their loved ones against the day of want. It is not known yet whether this gigantic loss will result in the failure of the insurance company or not, but there can be no doubt that it will be severely crippled by it. The resources of the company will be reduced by just the amount lost and its power to meet its liabilities just that much diminished. The security to its policy holders is worth a million dollars less than they supposed, and this loss must be divided among thousands of poor people throughout the country who had made it the receptacle of their savings.

The man who stole all this money has been arrested, as a matter of course, but what punishment will be meted out to him that will be at all commensurate with the enormity of his guilt? If he had taken a crow bar and worked his way into the safe of some old Shylock, he would doubtless get ten or a dozen years in the state prison, but he was not guilty of any such offense. He merely took the money of widows and orphans that had been trusted to his keeping, probably losing it in stock speculations or squandering it in riotous living, and the chances are that he will get off with a nominal penalty, if he does but faintly escape. And then the country will wag along in its heedless way again for a short time, until it is waked up into its periodical excitement by a repetition of the crime upon the part of somebody else.

The fact is, we treat criminals of this kind with too much leniency. A slim chance to be sent to prison for a few years is not sufficient to deter villains from taking risks that they hope to make the source of great profit. The punishment ought to be more terrible in character, and altogether more sure and certain. A dose of hemp, administered externally, would do good, and if Baldwin, the Newark cashier, does not get it he will get off too easy.

The eccentricities of Baron Von Steuben remained with him down to the day of his death. In his will, after making liberal bequests to his servants, he placed the following clause:

"But I do hereby declare that these legacies to my servants are on the following conditions: That on my decease they do not permit any person to touch my body, not even to change the shirt in which I shall die, but that they wrap me up in my old military cloak and in 24 hours after my decease bury me in such spot as I might before my decease point out to them, and that they never acquaint any person with the place where I shall be buried."

The very valuable picture lost by Mr. Vanderbilt in the Marvell fire was one of Mr. Alfred Stevens' latest works—a strongly realistic drawing-room scene. When Mr. W. M. Chase last summer, was in Paris, he saw a large preparatory sketch of this painting, which struck him as a composition of many remarkable parts and as one of the best of the author's productions.

WHEN a South Carolina gentleman of the old school discovers a stain on his family record there is but one way to erase it, and that is by a liberal use of the persuasive revolver or the glittering bowie knife. Last Friday Mary Law, white woman living in Lexington county, South Carolina, took it upon herself to marry a colored individual named Manning Law. The ceremony was performed as privately as possible, and on its conclusion the presumably happy pair started in a buggy for Augusta, Ga. They had not proceeded far when knowledge of their nuptials came to the brothers of the woman, and an active pursuit of the newly-married pair was at once instituted. The result of this was to bring about one of the most exciting honeymoons on record. When about ten miles on their journey Mr. and Mrs. Law were overtaken by the sanguinary brothers of the bride. The groom saw the approach of his newly-made relatives, and appreciating the delicacy of the situation, drew a pistol and began firing at his pursuers. They returned the fire, one bullet taking effect in Law's breast, inflicting a wound that will probably result fatally. Having satisfactorily disposed of the dusky person who had with such bad taste forced himself into their family, the Messrs. Lewis proceeded to the house of the preacher who had performed the marriage ceremony, but, fortunately for that party, he saw the approach of the indignant brothers-in-law and fled to the woods, his departure for the timber being the signal for some pistol practice on the part of the Lewis family representatives. At last accounts the preacher was in Columbia, S. C., the negro was dying, and the Lewis brothers were reloading their pistols.

SAYS the New York Times:

"It is well worth while noting the almost entire disappearance of punched silver coins from circulation in New York—if for no other reason, simply as an indication of what the public may do when it takes a decided stand against any one of the minor nuisances that continually arise to pester it, even when it promises to act upon a misapprehension of the law by which it is protected. A month ago the proportion of light-weight coins taken in over his counter by a shopkeeper reached about twenty in a hundred—nearly all the smaller ones had been tampered with—but now hardly one in a hundred is going from hand to hand. The officials of the treasury announced that clipped or perforated coin was not a legal tender, and would not be received by the government. This statement furnished good cause for the shopkeepers to refuse to accept it in payment, and, backed by the action of some of the railroads and larger restaurants, they substituted for the spurious cards others merely announcing that punched or mutilated coins would not be received. The general public took up the cue, and in an incredibly short time hardly any but good coins were in circulation. The rogues who had been taking a little bit out of every silver piece passing through their hands found their occupation gone."

THE treasury is admirably filled in the appointment of Judge Folger. The better he becomes known to the country, the more heartily will it be commended. In mental caliber and organization a statesman of broad gauge; in politics a positive Republican without being a factionist; in personal character pure and blameless, he combines almost all elements of worth and strength. Judge Folger is probably a wise man, but a positive, sinewy statesman of robust individuality and splendid ability. He merely took the money of widows and orphans that had been trusted to his keeping, probably losing it in stock speculations or squandering it in riotous living, and the chances are that he will get off with a nominal penalty, if he does but faintly escape. And then the country will wag along in its heedless way again for a short time, until it is waked up into its periodical excitement by a repetition of the crime upon the part of somebody else.

The fact is, we treat criminals of this kind with too much leniency. A slim chance to be sent to prison for a few years is not sufficient to deter villains from taking risks that they hope to make the source of great profit. A PARTIAL FAILURE.

The General Assembly shall provide a thorough and efficient system of free schools, and all children of this State may receive a good common school education. (State Constitution, Art. 8, Sec. 1.)

The preceding clause is quoted direct from the State Constitution of Illinois. The General Assembly, (the legislature), in complying with the requirements of the above clause of our excellent constitution as devised by the able committee that framed it, and as established by the will of the people, sought to comply with its requirements to the very letter by offering to the commonwealth our excellent system of schools. Our legislators have been wise in providing means for the maintenance of these schools. A systematic division of school work distributes the burden of consequent labor from carrying out such a grand system among a happy devised plan of offices work from the head of the system to the laborers in the school-room. Saving the least of the plans for carrying out "a thorough and efficient system of free schools," so far as paying for the system is concerned, and so far as the officering of the state, county, townships and district is concerned, we have a perfect system.

The constitution provides that "all children of the state may receive a good common school education." Have we any system for carrying this out? Suppose it read for one-half of the "children receiving a good common school education," are we even doing fifty percent of such a requirement? Certainly not. It is a lamentable fact that we do not give one-half of our school population "a good common school education." Why is this? In attempting to answer this all important question, space will not allow us to go into detail; but we most earnestly invite the reader's attention to the following items, to be considered as leading points in answering it, viz:

1. Our system ends with the threshold of the school-room.

2. We levy our taxes, collect them, build our school houses, elect our officers, appoint our teachers, and pay for all running expenses cheerfully and willingly; comply with the letter of the law without a murmur, etc., then stand and wonder why our schools do not make scholars.

In doing all this we have only prepared for that party, he saw the approach of the indignant brothers-in-law and fled to the woods, his departure for the timber being the signal for some pistol practice on the part of the Lewis family representatives. At last accounts the preacher was in Columbia, S. C., the negro was dying, and the Lewis brothers were reloading their pistols.

3. There is nothing in our schools (country) for which to work.

The child needs something to work for. He needs to know his grade, rank and standing, as compared with the standard of comparison. His work should be as carefully recorded as there is nothing for which to aspire.

4. Finally, there is an utter want of any uniform in the work of the individual teacher.

So long as schools are run subject to the guidance and individual whims of a succession of town teachers so long will interest and a love for the school room be unknown in the rural districts. We need a systematic and natural course of study fully carried out.

A course of study that will hold the pupil in it till he is fifteen for the high school; a course that will provide for a regular series of promotions; for regular monthly examinations supplemented by annual examinations; for a strict and legal record of the work of each pupil; for regular reports to parents; for comparative work at least annually; for reporting names and addresses of those who fail to attend school at least three months in the year till of a stated age; and of many other minor items of equal value and a necessity to such a plan.

Until we have a system which holds every one connected with it responsible for all his work, and which compels every one to do his duty, we shall fail to give every child a good and efficient common school education.

JOHN TRAISER.

WASHINGTON, October 31.—A tall, broad-shouldered, well-dressed man came to the White House this morning about 10 o'clock, and asked to see the President. The usher told him the President was not in, whereupon he delivered the following letter:

JOHN WOLING: You are hereby notified that Dr. John Nostling is lawfully elected President of the United States and occupies the White House over day. (Signed) ALMAGREE GOD.

Communicated by the Holy Spirit.

This is of course, put the usher on his guard, and he quietly invited him to take a seat in the ante room until the President could see him.

Sergeant Dinmore was sent for, and on asking what business the stranger had with the President, he handed him a paper with the following request, to be shown to the President:

I desire the official return of the late Presidential election.

After vainly trying to get the man to leave, Sergeant Dinmore attempted to arrest him. A fearful struggle took place, in which the madman was, with difficulty, overpowered by three attendants of the White House. He finally was thrown down, and his pistol, which he had grasped to draw at the beginning of the struggle, was taken from him. It was a seven-barreled revolver of small caliber and fully loaded.

The madman was taken to the police headquarters. His name he gave as Dr. John Noeling, although he had been at hotel here since the 28th of September under the name of John Woling. His home is Colesville, Snyder county, Pa. He was here in May last, and was then arrested by the police as a crank, and sent to his family in Pennsylvania.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 31.—Friends and relatives of Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, in this city, have received information of improvement in that lady's health. She is under treatment in a water cure establishment in New York city.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Oct. 31.—The river at this point is falling steadily.

The gauge at noon was sixteen feet nine inches above the low-water mark. This is a fall of nearly a foot since Friday morning, when the gauge was at its highest, seventeen feet and seven-tenths.

ONLY TWO MILLIONS,

Is the Amount a Bank Cashier Embezzled.

Another Crank at the White House.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—The Post's Newark, N. J., special says: The Directors of the Mechanics' National Bank, the largest bank in Newark, this morning announced its suspension. A meeting of the directors was held yesterday afternoon, and Cashier O. L. Baldwin stated the bank was not in condition to pay, and that the liabilities were so great that further attempts to carry on business would be useless. The directors offered to subscribe $500,000 to put the bank in condition for business, but the cashier responded that $2,000,000 would not do it. The directors then decided to suspend business at once.

Cashier Baldwin was arrested by the United States Marshal on the affidavit of a director, who charged him with confessing to the board yesterday that he had fraudulently misappropriated over $2,000,000 of its funds. The directors are in session with closed doors, and the wildest rumors are afloat, which are impossible to verify. No suspicion is yet felt toward any other than the cashier, who had the unlimited confidence of the president and directors. The cashier, fearing a visit from the National Bank Examiner, called the directors together yesterday and confessed the terrible condition of affairs.

Louisville, Oct. 31.—The thirty-seventh drawing of the Commonwealth Distribution company was held to day. Ticket No. 32,861 drew $30,000. No. 77,869, $10,000, and No. 60,077, $5,000. The following tickets drew $1,000 each: 31,916, 51,551, 56,612, 71,667, 86,799, 90,426.

ELGIN, Ill., Oct. 31.—There is no doubt of the existence of small-pox in this city, one death having occurred yesterday, and two cases developed. The schools have been closed to prevent possibilities, and the authorities are taking prompt measures to stamp out the disease.

Baldwin stated voluntarily that about the year 1873 he began to make loans to C. Nugent & Co., Morocco manufacturers, without security or the sanction of the directors. Having begun, he was in the power of Nugent & Co., and continued the accommodations, sometimes loaning them $50,000 in one month, till the total increased to a ridiculous amount. Nugent assured him he had large property and capital in the business, which would make all loans good. Nugent was well aware he (Baldwin) was using the bank's money, and always promised to surrender his property in case of any trouble. Under these circumstances the loan was increased till it reached over $2,000,000. The manner in which this was done was thus: Nugent would give drafts on friends in New York, which would be credited him as cash, and Baldwin would use the bank's money to take up the drafts when due. The books were so falsified as to show the accounts to be correct. Finally, however, the losses were placed in the account of the Mechanics' bank, New York, agent of the Newark bank, so that while it appeared the Newark bank had claims for $2,000,000 against the New York bank, in truth the Newark bank owes the New York bank $200,000. This difference is almost wholly due to irregular transactions with Nugent. He said he had speculated very little, and lost nothing in that way. District Attorney Keisby says New York can be held liable for his part of the transaction, under section 3209 of the United States Revised Statutes. The rumor that Nugent made an assignment to day was preposterous.

Baldwin was arrested in bed at 7 o'clock this morning. He showed no surprise, and was evidently expecting arrest. He said he would not give bail and he was content to pass his life in prison. "I shall never be seen on Broad street again," he exclaimed. The business of the morocco firm of C. Nugent & Co. is said to amount to over $1,000,000 a year. They employ 600 men, and the weekly payroll amounts to $4,900. "When Baldwin was before us," said a director to a Tribune reporter, "he appeared anxious to make a clean breast of the matter. He said he fully realized the grave nature of the offense, and admitted he ought to be dealt with in the severest manner the law would allow. There is no excuse for my misdeeds," he said, "and I now see what I ought to have known years ago. I stand before you to-night a perfumer, a forger, a falsifier and a criminal. I think, gentlemen," he said in conclusion, "that you ought to send for the officers and put me under arrest for misappropriating your money and the money belonging to other persons. It is your duty to send me to jail, and I only ask the privilege of going home to inform my wife and family of my misdeeds. They know nothing about this affair. I never expect to go to jail again, but instead I expect to go to jail, and from there to state's prison; where I shall have to end my days. If I had not been too much of a coward I would not have been here to-night to tell you this story. I should have shot myself. Since I have chosen to live I must suffer."

MARION residents are rejoicing and feel just as our people did when coal was found here in paying quantities, not long since. After many weary months of hard work, Healy & Stoddard on Saturday night struck a vein of coal six feet thick, near Marion, at a depth of 720 feet. The shaft was once abandoned for lack of funds to sink it deeper, but the contractors hustled around and raised enough to catch up progress with the enterprise.

ALL the leading styles in Hats, Caps and Gent's Furnishing Goods, at CHEAP CHARLEY'S.

THESE important improvements now going on in Merchant alley, between Main and Prairie streets, under the direction of Supervisor Shorb, is one that is watched with more than ordinary interest by merchants whose places of business are in that block, and by taxpayers generally. The city has ordered that the alley be bouldered from one end to the other, and a large force of men and teams are now engaged in hauling out the water and slop-soaked earth to make room for the rocks, a great heap of which are piled up in the rear of the Decatur National Bank. They have been there for several weeks, and they will be chucked into the alley as soon as possible. This is one of the best improvements that could have been devised and will put a stop to the complaints that have been raised against the bothersome alley for so long a time.

ANOTHER fishing party has gone to the Kankakee river to be absent an indefinite period. The party as made up this morning consisted of E. W. Wood, Jack Renshaw, J. Y. Kankakee river is becoming a famous resort for Decatur members of the pictorial band. It is a fine spot for such sport, and the surroundings are all that could be desired.

A DENTIST, a lawyer and a photograph artist tried hard to give us an item this afternoon, but the seeming shrieks of anguish on the part of the attorney turned out to be as false as the teeth which the dentist makes, and as deceptive as the arguments of the lawyer himself, while the burglar which the artist reported was like his pictures—nothing but shadow.

THE African Methodist Deeds to Build a New House of Worship in Decatur.

AN important meeting of the pastor, official board and members of the African Methodist Episcopal congregation was held last night at the old church on Cemetery street, to consider the matter of replacing the old edifice or build a new and modern place of worship, one that will be an ornament to that street, a credit to Decatur and the congregation, and afford better accommodations. Those present were Rev. Alexander, the pastor, Isaac Hogan, Geo. Robinson, J. D. Patterson, James A. Love, and Larkin Kindred, members of the official board, and a large majority of the congregation, which has a membership of about 60. After a full discussion it was voted to build a new frame church as soon as possible, the size to be about 26 by 46 feet. The new edifice will be built on the site of the old rickety frame, which was erected in 1855. The lot owned by the congregation is 80 by 190 feet in size. The new church will cost in the neighborhood of $2,500, and will seat about 300 people. This is an important undertaking for this congregation, which is short of funds, but the membership feel that with what they can raise among themselves and from the liberal wealthy residents of this community the enterprise can be successfully engineered without any very great embarrassment. The trustees were empowered to appoint a committee to confer with contractors, and report at a business meeting to be held two weeks hence.

A "Quilting" Party.

The ladies of the Presbyterian congregation will give a quilting party in the lecture room of the Presbyterian church on Thursday next, beginning at noon. In the evening supper will be served and a sociable will be given. Oysters, stewed and fried, with the usual accompaniments, will be served from 5 until 8 o'clock. The ladies invite you and your friends, and will give all a cordial welcome, a good supper and a pleasant evening.

A BROKEN RAIL

The West Bound Wabash Trains Delayed Seven Hours at Sangamon.

Wabash passenger train No. 2, eastward bound, met with a serious mishap between the Sangamon river bridge and the station of Sangamon, four miles east of Decatur, last night at about 12 o'clock, by which a baggage car was thrown from the track, but fortunately there was no loss of life or serious hurts or bruises received. The train was going at nearly full speed when there was a sudden jolting and jarring noise that aroused everybody in the coaches and created a general alarm. The train was stopped as quickly as possible when it was discovered that A BROKEN RAIL was the cause of all the trouble, but why it should have broken into so many pieces no one seems prepared to explain, and that's all anybody knows about it. The only car to leave the track was the baggage car, the locomotive and through mail car passing over the rail with safety before it began to shiver and break. The road bed was torn up for a considerable distance, and a blockade at that point on the road was the result. The track was not repaired until nearly 10 o'clock this forenoon, and the west-bound mail and passenger trains were fully seven hours late in reaching Decatur.

A PUBLIC RAILWAY MEETING.

A public meeting was held at Marion last evening in the interest of the much talked-of Cerro Gordo Short Line broad gauge railway which is to be built from Marion through Cerro Gordo to Charles-ton, in Coles county. The chairman of the meeting was Major C. F. Emery, and the hall was well filled with the taxpayers of the town. The speakers were Colonel Harris, of Cerro Gordo, the president of the new enterprise, and Judge O. B. Picklin, of Charleston, one of the directors. It was the first meeting of a series to be held along the proposed route. The speakers spoke in glowing terms of the future of the new road, which may be extended south from Charleston to Louisville, Ky., and thence further south to Savannah, Ga. The talk is that the company may eventually absorb the western division of the Illinois Midland Railway and thus obtain an independent route from Marion to Peoria and the Illinois river. The meeting became quite enthusiastic before it broke up and was a good start at that end of the proposed new road. Books were opened to receive subscriptions for stock of the Short Line. To-day Col. Harris and Mr. John H. Crocker, the Marion director, were in Decatur, attending to matters connected with the enterprise.

SOCIAL NEWS.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Brueck gave a delightful Halloween party at their home on West William street last evening, which continued until one o'clock this morning. One of the main features of the occasion was an old-fashioned taffy pulling exercise that was highly enjoyed. The refreshments included popcorn, chocolate and cake. The guests were G. A. Challis, Annie Chambers, Herb Bartholomew, J. W. Clugston, Mollie Barnes, Bert J. Hardly and Jessie Fenton.

THIS evening the Redotto Club will be entertained at the home of the Misses Jones, north of the city. It will be a formal party given in honor of Miss Fannie Schellbarger, who will sail from New York city on the 5th for Europe, to be absent until next summer.

COMEDY AND DRAMA.

Two Fine Attractions at the Opera House this week.

THE JOLLIES.

This company, of which we have spoken so highly during the past week, has arrived in the city and will appear at the opera house to-night in the new comedy craze, "The Electrical Doll." The bill says, "See the Jollies and you will laugh as you have never laughed before." The company took Jacksonville and Springfield by storm, and the people laughed until the tears ran down their cheeks, so say the papers of each city. Popular prices to-night. Go early and avoid the rush.

DIL. GREGORY

will fill his engagement at the opera house on Wednesday evening next, when he will deliver one of his newest and best lectures, entitled "Bards of Health and Sanitary Matters." It will prove a rich intellectual treat, and many valuable hints on the laws of health will be given. Let the Doctor be greeted by an over-flowing house.

"MY GERALDINE."

All lovers of the drama should not fail to witness the above new production by Bartley Campbell at the opera house on Thursday evening, Nov. 3d. The play will be presented by the original company that presented it in New York city with such marked success.

NEW YORK WORLD.

Garden was reopened for the season last evening, when Mr. Bartley Campbell's new play, "My Geraldine," which was produced at the Standard Theater last season, was performed. The house was well filled, and many actors and actresses were present. From the first the audience showed itself disposed to applaud liberally, and at the end of the second act Mr. Campbell was called before the curtain.

A NIGHT FOR THE BOYS.

The boys, large and small, were out in full force last night, and to judge from the shouts of laughter, and the stamping up and down the streets and sidewalks that were heard all along by our reporter and the police, they must have had a high old time. It was the annual recurrence of Halloween, the evening before All Saints Day, and an evening that is generally observed in England by novel fireside customs, such as drinking in tubs of water for nuts, choosing partners for life and similar pastimes. Within the recollection of the writer Halloween in Decatur has always been a time of a general racket among the boys. They went abroad in squads and small companies last night until after 12 o'clock, and gates, wagons and other vehicles had to suffer as usual. Life is too short to look up all that was done, but we can say that no great damage was done in any part of the city. The police were kept on the alert until after 12 o'clock this morning, chasing the mischievous fellows through the streets and up and down alleys. Some dead trees were uprooted, and cord wood and signs took a change of venue in various quarters of the town.

A BROKEN RAIL

was the cause of all the trouble, but why it should have broken into so many pieces no one seems prepared to explain, and that's all anybody knows about it. The only car to leave the track was the baggage car, the locomotive and through mail car passing over the rail with safety before it began to shiver and break. The road bed was torn up for a considerable distance, and a blockade at that point on the road was the result. The track was not repaired until nearly 10 o'clock this forenoon, and the west-bound mail and passenger trains were fully seven hours late in reaching Decatur.

A GOSSIPY LETTER.

PEASLEYS from Fenny, a flourishing Deer Park, New York.

PEASLEY are busy bushing Belvoir, and our grain merchants are exchanging their checks at the rate of 50 cents a bushel. We are receiving an influx of immigrants of about the rate of three families to the house. All our village looks of becoming a city is houses to accommodate the tide of emigration, and our stores are still building; and C. Bush, our lumberman, is happy, both on account of incessant sales and the agreeableness of his new partner, which we understand is located for the present in the crib. The citizens in the vicinity of Fenny have organized a School club in their new school house and seem thoroughly aroused to the importance of the good work. Elder Tyler, of Decatur, preached in our village last Sabbath, and some other Elder, whose name we did not learn, preached in the evening. His subject was the "Blinding Causes of the Christian Religion," in which he scored fine points on dancing and left them without a trump at such. We don't know whether he had been posted or not, but he signed his arms in the proper direction if they ever went beyond the mark. Kir.

A $2,000 Judgment.

Some months ago the Magill Brothers, of Clinton, sued the Wabash railway company to recover $2,000 damages on a cargo of wool which was damaged by the rise of water at Toledo. The Wabash company has compromised with the complainants at 70 cents on the dollar, the company to pay all costs of the suit. A Clinton correspondent writes that this case was more than of ordinary interest, as upon it other claims to the amount of $1,000,000, located as far west as California and Nebraska, and, in fact, several of the western states, hinge, and will no doubt be compromised in like manner. The Magill Bros' case was the first instituted and the first settled. Moore & Warren were attorneys for Magill Bros, and the Hon. M. Donahue for the railway. The road at first refused to reimburse the Magill Brothers, alleging that the destruction of their wool by the flood was an act of God, hence their refusal; but it seems now that they have seen their folly and have come to the conclusion that they are liable.

PHILLIP KASBER.

The German Butcher in the County Court Charged With Insanity.

Yesterday we made mention of the fact of the arrest of a German butcher of local notoriety, who had been confined in the city calaboose. This morning Marshal Hewes appeared in the county court and filed a statement to the effect that the prisoner, Phillip Kasber, is insane; that he believed for his own benefit and for that of the community he ought to be committed to the Illinois State Hospital, as upon it other claims to the amount of $1,000,000, located as far west as California and Nebraska, and, in fact, several of the western states, hinge, and will no doubt be compromised in like manner. LAWYER FOR LIFE.

There was a quiet wedding at one o'clock this (Tuesday) afternoon in the main parlor of the St. Nicholas Hotel, the contracting parties being Mr. William Hodson, a farmer residing near St. Mary's, Auglaize county, Ohio, and Miss Katie Moorth, a step-daughter of Benjamin Moorth, of Argenta, this county. The officiating clergyman was Major C. F. Emery, and the hall was well filled with the taxpayers of the town. The speakers were Colonel Harris, of Cerro Gordo, the president of the new enterprise, and Judge O. B. Picklin, of Charleston, one of the directors. It was the first meeting of a series to be held along the proposed route. The speakers spoke in glowing terms of the future of the new road, which may be extended south from Charleston to Louisville, Ky., and thence further south to Savannah, Ga.
